

Born in 1947, Jean-Claude ETTINGER holds a « Business Engineer » degree (1970) and a PHD in Management Sciences (1980) of the Business School (Brussels University).

After 3 years as assistant general manager in a hospital equipment company, he joined back the Solvay Business School to start a consulting group. In the meantime, after a doctoral dissertation about personal aspects of business start-ups, he has developed an academic career focused on entrepreneurship and support to entrepreneurs.

In the context of the Solvay Business School, he founded an incubator of 3000 m<sup>2</sup>, the Entrepreneurship Centre of Brussels University and many executive education programmes.

Besides being professor in Entrepreneurship and Management Accounting at the Business School and in Vietnam, he still heads all these entities supporting entrepreneurs and integrated in the “Solvay Entrepreneurs” department.

An experienced consultant in SME management, Jean-Claude ETTINGER is also President of the Wallonia Business Angels Network (WABAN), member of several boards of Belgian and international companies and organisations. He is also author of many publications on entrepreneurship and consulting for SME's.